Lisa Robison, a junior majoring in speech/theatre and English, received the Homecoming Queen crown following last Thursday night's performance of the Variety Show.

The eight skits in the Variety Show revolved around "Fantasy Land", the theme for the 1988 Homecoming. Six olio acts were also featured in this year's program, held in the Mary Linn Performing Arts Center.

First place awards were given to Delta Chi with "The Bearcat Brothers and Bud Elliot Circus" in the fraternity division, Delta Zeta with "The Wizard of Northwest" in the sorority division and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia with "Superbob" in the independent division. The Chordbusters received first place among the olio acts for their performance of "Old McDonald."

Students had mixed feelings about both the Thursday and Friday night performances of the Variety Show.

"I don't think it was quite as good as last year," Eugene Buzard, a student at Northwest said. "It didn't seem like there were as many acts."

David Gieseke, director of public relations at Northwest, said he was pleased with how smooth the show ran.

"The Variety Show ran itself. The people backstage were great," Gieseke said. "It worked like clockwork."

City cracks down on off-campus parties

BY KELLIE WATT
Managing Editor

The Maryville Public Safety Department has established a list of ordinances to stop uncontrollable social events. The list was introduced at a press conference September 21.

These ordinances will be strictly adhered to and anyone who violates the given guidelines will be subject to disciplinary actions and, in some cases, prosecution may result.

Implementation of the ordinances was prompted by many calls concerning complaints, some of which were for the same location.

"There has been little cooperation from those having the parties and even less from those attending such parties," Maryville Police Chief Larry Jackson said in a press release. "Many of those attending such social events have no respect for the neighborhood's peace and quiet and/or appearance of other's property."

There have been numerous injuries reported as a result of social gatherings. According to Jackson, an individual sustained spinal damage at a party. It has not yet been determined whether the damage is permanent. In another incident, three individuals were seriously injured and had to seek medical attention.

One of the biggest concerns among public safety officials as well as the community is securing intoxicating liquor and non-intoxicating beer from minors. Guidelines established by the Maryville Public Safety Department to help control the noted problems are as follows.

Section 4-206 Securing Intoxicating Liquor and Non-intoxicating Beer for Minor Prohibited- (a) No person, organization, club or other group shall purchase or in any way secure or supply intoxicating liquor or non-intoxicating beer for or to any person under the age of 21 years.

(b) The prohibition obtained in paragraph (a) shall not apply to the purchase, securing or supply of any intoxicating liquor by the parent or guardian of such a person under such age or to the administering of the sale of intoxicating liquor to such a person under such age by a duly licensed physician as part of the medical treatment.

(c) If said violation of subsection (a) in this ordinance shall be violated, then the person as well as the officers, directors, sponsors, leaders or organizers of the illegal securing or supply of intoxicating liquor or non-intoxicating beer may in addition thereto, be held individually guilty of violating this ordinance.

Sec. 4-207 Purchase or Possession by a Minor Prohibited- No person under the age of 21 years shall purchase or attempt to purchase or have in his or her possession any intoxicating liquor or non-intoxicating beer.

Sec. 8-105 Profane Language- No person shall speak, utter, shout, yell or use in the presence of others profane, vulgar or indecent language in a public place or from private property which is calculated to be heard by others including those on or off the premises of the private property.

Sec. 8-140 Liability of Permitting Peace Disturbance or Disorderly Conduct on Premises- (a) No person, group of persons, organization or club shall keep or maintain any disorderly house or room or shall any person or persons, assemble in or congregate about their house or place of business any idle, facetious, drunken or swearing person making such noises as to disturb the peace of others.

(b) This section shall include, but in no way be limited to,

Hubbard to chair conference on undergraduate education

BY WILLIAM BECK
Staff Writer

President Dean Hubbard is representing Northwest at a national conference on the quality of undergraduate education. The conference, "Keeping the Promise," began Wednesday and will conclude tomorrow at the Westin Crown Center Hotel in Kansas City.

The conference is co-sponsored by Northwest and the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Planning for the conference began when Hubbard compiled a work on quality undergraduate education and sent copies of the report to the sources who provided him information. They responded, saying that the work was excellent and needed to be shared with other universities.

noise created by the use, operation or permitting the use or operation of any radio, musical instrument, phonograph or other machine or device for producing or reproducing of sound in such a manner as to disturb the peace, quiet or comfort of others.

(c) If this subsection is violated by an organization, club or group of persons who own or occupy a common premise, the officers, directors, leader's organizers, or sponsors of said organization, club or group collectively be held individually liable and be found guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 8-111 Obstructing, Assaulting or Failure to Comply with Lawful Orders of City Police Officers- (c) It shall be unlawful for any person or group of persons to willfully fail or refuse to comply with any lawful order to direction of any police officer during the discharge of any of his official duties.

All in all, Jackson said the administrators and faculty at Northwest have been very cooperative. He also said that the major problem areas are not the fraternity houses but instead individuals who open their homes to large crowds and have no way of controlling the gathering. He plans to add more officers to the night shifts and he explained that it will be necessary to take a tougher, harder stance toward the students.

"The Maryville Public Safety Department will be active in finding a resolution to this ongoing problem," Jackson said.

4-H Club to hold workshops

The Northwest Area 4-H Club will be holding a leader's conference. Registration will begin at 9:15 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 8 at the First Baptist Church in Maryville.

Several educational workshops will be presented by Missouri 4-H Leader's Forum attendees and the Northwest Area 4-H Youth Staff.

For additional information, contact Scott Graham, 4-H Youth Specialist, at 582-8101.

Hubbard accepts new contract from Regents

BY WILLIAM BECK
Staff Writer

Northwest President Dean Hubbard received a five year rolling contract at the Sept. 14 Board of Regents meeting.

A rolling contract allows the Regents to examine Hubbard's progress each year and provides them the option of extending the contract another year.

"The thing I like about the contract is that it forces the Board to very formally evaluate me on an annual basis," Hubbard said.

The Board of Regents chooses the president of the University and evaluates his performance. By offering Hubbard the new contract, they indicated that they are pleased with the job he is doing.

The contract does not increase Hubbard's salary or fringe benefits, but the new contract does allow Hubbard to make more far sighted goals for improvement at Northwest. Hubbard would like to see Northwest take a leadership role in providing the best education available anywhere in the nation.

There were rumors of Hubbard being offered the presidency at other universities but he said the offers were not the reason why the Regents presented the rolling option.

"I'd like to stay around and enjoy what's going to happen in the next few years," Hubbard said. "I like it here. We have a fine university."

Last February, the AASCU said they would co-sponsor the conference and planning soon began.

When asked why he wanted to co-sponsor the conference, Hubbard said, "If we can get a look at other people that are already doing these things and learn from their experiences, then we are just that much farther ahead [in educational quality]. We are not re-inventing the wheel."

This is only the second time that AASCU has co-sponsored a conference with a university. The first conference was with the George Mason University of Washington, D.C.

Planners of the Northwest conference asked several of the nation's top educators to speak at the event.

"We had no trouble getting the top people in the country," Hubbard said.

The organizers even found themselves having to turn down several universities that wanted to present duplicate programs.

The conference is set up for three days of concurrent sessions, meaning that the other state colleges and universities in the nation will be presenting sessions on what they have done to improve the quality of undergraduate education at their university. Because the response to the conference was so great, no university can repeat their presentation.

Northwest is holding three sessions.

The first is called "Advantage '87: A Freshman Year Experience," which is geared toward making the transition from high school to college easier on the student.

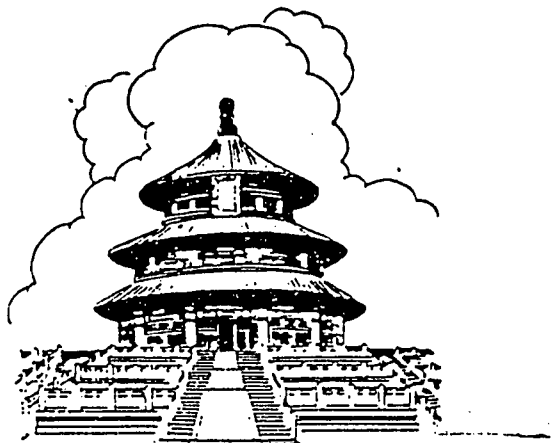

The second session is called "Computer Literacy on the Electronic Campus," which will explain how comfortable the incoming freshmen are with computers and how to make them more computer literate.

The third session is called "Winning the Race: Enrollment Management as Quality Control." It will present case studies on how enrollment at Northwest has kept the quality of education at high levels, as well as the impact it has had on the institution itself.

Northwest will also have terminals set up for visiting conference members to use. The computers will be tied to the University through modem systems which run through the phone lines. The members will be able to access any part of the Electronic Campus they wish.

"The reason AASCU is interested in the conference is because they want to create momentum among AASCU institutions to get them involved in improving quality," Hubbard said.

Maryville returns to Phase I of water conservation plan

BY BRET BAILEY
Staff Writer

The City of Maryville went from Phase II to Phase I of the water conservation plan on Sept. 19 because of recent rainfalls.

According to the "Plan for Implementation of Water Conservation Measures," Maryville citizens are no longer restricted to outdoor water use but are asked to practice voluntary water conservation.

Paul Taylor, City Services Director, said there were three reasons for returning to Phase I. Within the past month Maryville has received some of the much needed precipitation. In addition, the weather has been cooler which has decreased the need for extensive air-conditioning. On Sept. 26 air-conditioners across the campus were shut off in an attempt to conserve water.

Taylor also noted that the conservation plan worked. Prior to the implementation of the water conservation plan Maryville businesses and residents consumed approximately two million gallons of water in an average day. Since the city entered Phase II Maryville's water consumption decreased to 1.5 million gallons per day.

Despite recent improvements, the water shortage is still not over.

"We're not out of this thing by any means. What we have here is probably just a temporary relief," Dan Moellenberndt, City Manager, said.

Maryville has not received rain for more than a week. Currently the city is 10 to 15 inches below its normal rainfall. All of the options that the city is exploring are costly and there are problems with practicality.

According to Moellenberndt, the city is looking for a reasonable water source, but the options are limited. Receiving water by way of a pipeline from either the Nodaway River, Platte River or Nodaway Lake is one of the options that the city is considering. Currently the city's water supply comes from the 102 River on the eastern edge of Maryville.

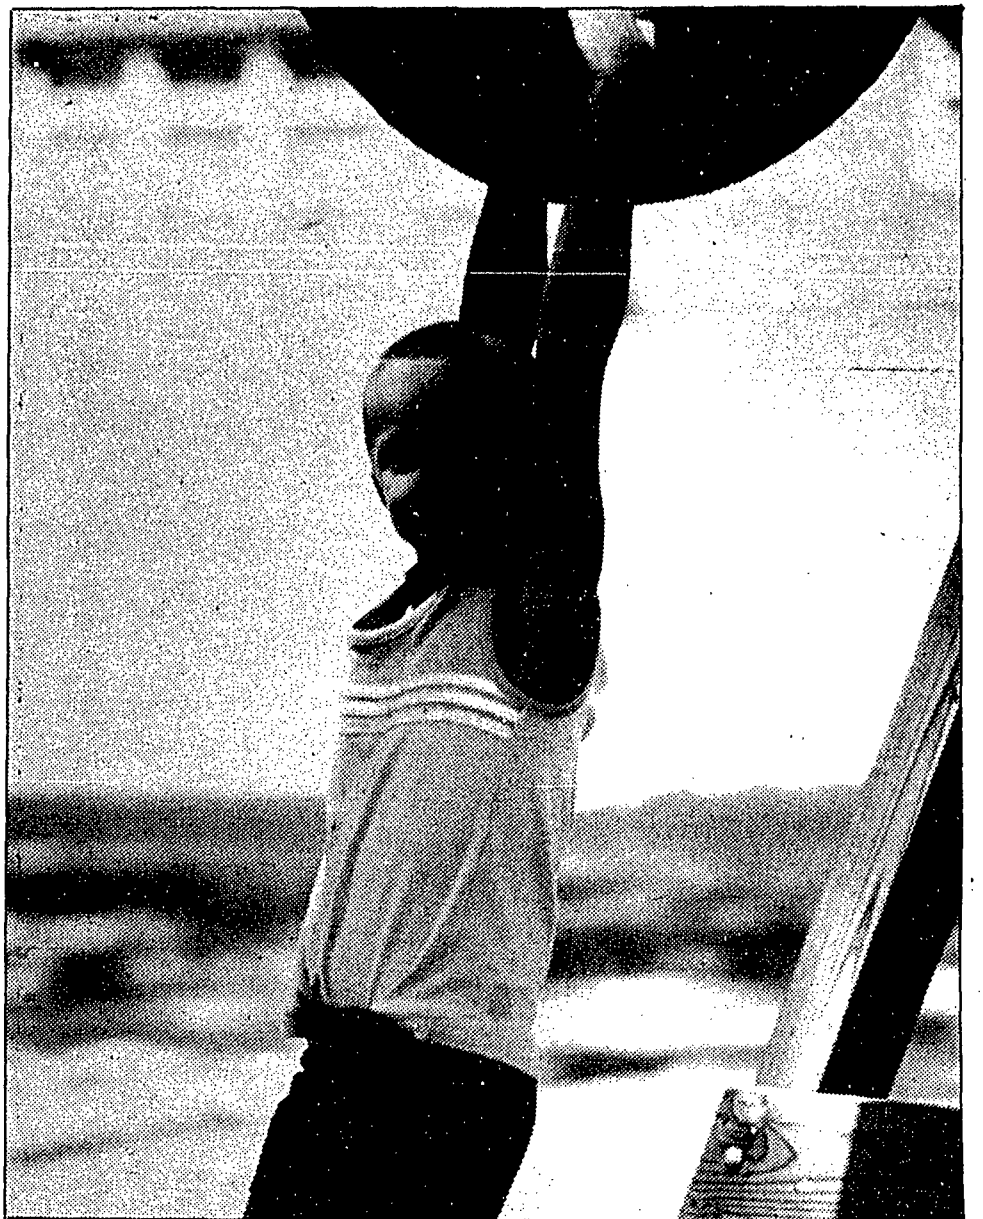

Another possible solution to the water shortage is using waste water lagoons as a source. If this step is taken, water would have to be treated.

Finally the city is considering exploration of wells. There are five test sites in which water quality and quantity will be determined. These test sites are located two and one-half miles southeast of town.

Taylor said this summer's drought has left the ground water "seriously depleted". Much of the ground water is hard and unhealthy.

There has been talk of having a watering schedule where certain addresses water on certain days. Taylor noted that the problem with this option is that many addresses would use an excessive amount of water on their watering day.

Maryville is not in an emergency state at the present time. However, all options are being considered in case the situation worsens. Moellenberndt said that within the next four to six weeks the city should have a plan drawn up outlining the options.

VARIETY

After the Variety Show kicked off the Homecoming festivities, students, faculty and citizens of Maryville lined the streets of the city Saturday morning for the parade.

In past years, the parade was plagued by rain and snow, but this year the weather was perfect. The parade went without a hitch, Gieseke said.

Organizations who won first place for floats in the parade were Delta Chi with "Carnival" in the fraternity division, Delta Zeta with "The Old Woman in the Shoe" in the sorority division and Ag Club with "Puff the Magic Dragon" in the independent division.

In the competition for best high school marching band, Savannah High School took the supremacy trophy for the third straight year.

Saturday afternoon was not as exciting for Bearcat fans: Northwest Bearcats lost the football game to the West Texas State Buffalos with a score of 65 to 42.

Ryland Milner, former star athlete for the Bearcats, member of the M-Club Athletic Hall of Fame, honored coach and emeritus athletic director received a 79th birthday salute at the football game.

Several organizations also placed house decorations on display during Homecoming. Delta Sigma Phi won the fraternity division with "Cat-a-Lot" and Pi Beta Alpha won the independent division with "Disneyland."

Student distraught with problems of racism

BY QUENTIN L. BANKS
Special to the Missourian

International and multi-cultural understanding is a campus-wide goal that has been set for the graduate students of Northwest. After being on the campus of Northwest it becomes evident that little effort is made to meet this goal.

"Students, regardless of race and background, should feel this is their school," President Dean Hubbard said.

The student population at Northwest is predominantly white and many black students feel alienated from the majority.

"The community and school are not geared at all for blacks," said Tory Tucker, a black Northwest student. "Instead they are geared toward whites."

A contributing factor to the negative atmosphere is the fact that there are no black faculty or administrators.

"As a freshman you have to adjust to and cope with college life and then when you get here you go through cultural shock because there are no role models here to help you through," Charles Balentine said. "Emphasis needs to be put on minority recruitment."

In addition to the lack of black instructors, some students believe that there is also a lack of understanding from the administrative point of view.

"The administration doesn't understand our culture and the university doesn't represent blacks fairly," Tucker said. "We have no one to look up to. There are no black guidance counselors and blacks find they have to work out their problems by themselves."

The absence of minority leadership on campus makes coping and adjusting to college life excessively difficult for minority students.

With no one to turn to, minority students find it hard to get the administration to recognize racial problems. Student Senate President Jamie Roop holds the responsibility of representing the student body with the administration and faculty.

"I see that there is a problem and I am trying to help," Roop said. "However, I don't truly understand the problem because I'm not a minority."

Having a representative who does not understand the plight of minority students makes it extremely difficult for those in the minority to get their views expressed on campus.

No representation is one concern of minority students, but direct racism is a very real issue that minority students have faced. There have been recurring incidents such as putting notes on students property that read, "The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan are watching you."

Not all white students have such a harsh view of the minority students. In fact, some wish to learn more about the foreign cultures. Dean Schmitz is one of those individuals who wish to learn more about the students in a foreign land. He doesn't feel as though he's getting a complete understanding of different cultures even though he associates with minority students frequently.

Even though the university has an ample array of minority students there are no classes that educate the overall white populace on campus. The only multi-cultural course offered at the university is focused toward education majors. There was a course in the past that dealt with black history, but it has since been removed from the curriculum.

The administration is trying to bridge the gap between minorities and the white populace by printing articles that contain positive statements about racism.

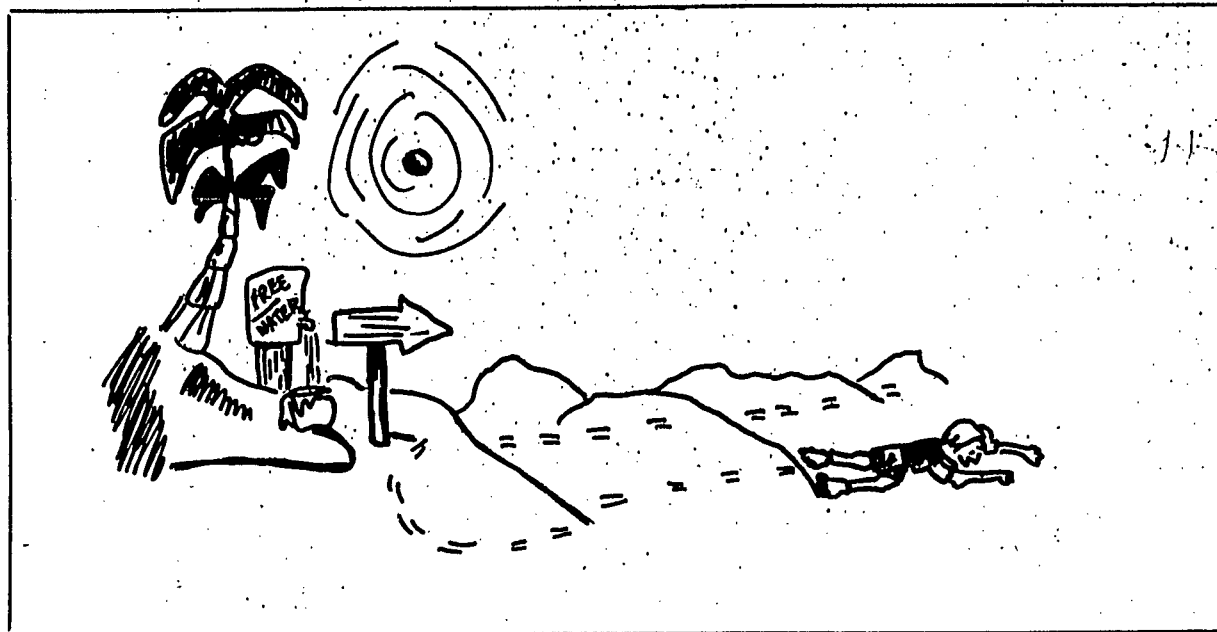

"There are ways of handling the dislikes without dirty shots," Bill Disney, Director of Student Services, said. One solution Disney suggested was to create a forum where blacks and whites could openly talk.

Students seemed to like Disney's idea and saw major advantages to his suggestion.

"We should have a focus group composed of blacks and whites where we can openly talk about problems on campus," Schmitz said.

The Northwest Missourian strongly encourages letters of complaint or compliment concerning anything on campus. If you have a letter you'd like to get printed, send the letter, complete with name and phone number, to Editor, Northwest Missourian, 3 Wells Hall, NWMSU, Maryville, MO, 64468. The phone number will not be used in the publication of the letter; it is necessary only to verify facts.

Beyond My Control

Our Man plays with dead puppies

Dead puppies aren't much fun.

Or at least Your Man was led to believe they aren't in the startling, heart-wrenching performance given by one Mrs. Malaprop in last week's Homecoming Variety Show.

Since then, Your Man has been giving that a great deal of thought. It's been a long time since he has become so in tune with a universal truth through a dramatic work, but as the walls of the Performing Arts Center quivered with the sweet vibrations of "Dead Puppies," Your Hero was hit by a revelation.

Stroller

Dead puppies really aren't much fun.

Now up until that point, Your Man had considered dead puppies to be pretty much like any other road kill. Sure, the circumference of the splatter is smaller than most other Spam-animals, but what makes a puppy less fun than other dead critters?

Like many other theories, this one is borne of contrast. When our Mrs. Malaprop (looking eerily like Marie Antoinette) came to that conclusion, she was probably remembering how much fun her Rover had been in life.

Granted, dead puppies obviously aren't as much fun as live ones. No dead puppy is going to come leaping at its master, shaking all over with its tail wagging—unless you hook it to your car battery with jumper cables. But looking on the bright side, it obviously won't be chewing on your best pair of shoes, either. Unless you wire a set of chattering teeth in its little jaws, that is.

After taking an informal survey of his fellow dormies, however, Your Man concluded that there are also several things you can do with a dead puppy that are difficult—not to mention completely inhumane—to do with a live one.

Hackey Sack comes to mind right off.

Your Hero's point is that while Mrs. Malaprop's performance was exceedingly moving, it could have been slightly misleading. Dead puppies aren't much fun, but if the alternative is Hackey Sacking a dead skunk, it seems that most anyone would opt for Rover.

Your Campus Crusader isn't sure what all of this has to do with Homecoming, but "Dead Puppies" will certainly go down as one of the most memorable—and high-pitched—acts in Variety Show history. Otherwise, the weekend seemed to be filled with all the usual pumping and circumstance with some hardy partying on the side.

The strangest thing of all, though, may have been the tradition-bashing weather. You know it's a drought when it doesn't even rain on Northwest's Homecoming.

Well, now that all the excitement's over, Your Man can settle in for a nice, uneventful October, knowing that Homecoming—like Rover—is yesterday's news.

Robison crowned queen

SHELLEY SEDDON
Staff Writer

Thirteen turned out to be a lucky number for Lisa Robinson last Thursday night at the Mary Linn Performing Arts Center. Lisa is the thirteenth member of her family to attend Northwest and the first one to be named Homecoming Queen. The trend started out with her great grandmother Espey, then continued through the family until it reached Lisa. Her father, Wayne Robinson, along with her grandfather, helped build the Garrett Strong Science building in the summer of 1967.

Lisa is a Junior from Savannah and is majoring in speech/theater and English. She is also vice-president of Alpha Sigma Alpha, the organization that nominated her.

The Queen process starts with an organization nominating a candidate to compete. Fifteen girls competed this year and began by filling out a fact sheet. On September 10 they were interviewed by five judges for approximately 15 minutes. The judges asked questions about their background, involvement in activities in high school and college, and some current event questions.

Lisa feels the selection of a homecoming queen should not be based on looks, but more on personality, activities and how well the person represents the campus. To prepare for the competition Lisa talked to a variety of people including Stephanie Carter, who was a finalist at one time. She also talked with her speech coach and academic advisor Dr. Ann Rowlette to get advice.

When her name was announced she said she was shocked. She just stood there surprised as her escort pulled her across the stage.

The best thing about being Homecoming Queen according to Lisa is the boost to her self-esteem. She feels more comfortable with herself now; even though she feels that she is the same person as she was before the competition.

The responsibilities of being Homecoming Queen include attending the Variety Show, riding in the parade, being announced at the game and crowning the 1989 Homecoming Queen.

Homecoming floats demand time

TIMOTHY TODD
Staff Writer

Homecoming and floats go together like ice cream and root beer. But the smoothness that comes with an ice cream float is nowhere to be found amid the work that goes into a homecoming float.

A lot of struggle and irritation go into the construction of a homecoming float. With all of the time and tension involved disagreements become an inevitable occurrence between participants. But somehow, the float manages to get done despite the problems.

"It takes more time than people realize: plans, research, and pumping take up countless hours," Mike Hughes, a Delta Chi member said.

The time invested definitely paid off for the members of Delta Chi. They captured first place in the Fraternity division with their float that resembled a ferris wheel.

According to Delta Chi float chairman, Mark Dereberry, the work actually started last spring when this year's theme

Bands parade through Maryville

TERRY ALEY
Staff Writer

An explosion of pride could be felt throughout the entire Lamkin Gymnasium as the Marching Savages from Savannah were announced the Class 4a marching band winners. The tension once again rose as there was a final trophy given to the marching band accumulating the most total points of the day.

The Marching Savages had their name engraved on the Supremacy trophy from the two previous years and any band fortunate enough to win this award for three consecutive years would get to take the mammoth-sized trophy home for keeps. But the competition was keen all around. It wasn't a decisive cut and dry competition, as the dedication and performance given by bands from all four class sizes shined through.

The sweat and tears of practicing for weeks paid off when the Savannah Marching Savages were announced winners of the Supremacy trophy. High fives, bear hugs, screams and ecstatic smiles raced through the crowd of Savannah students, now reigning champions for the third year in a row.

Two other musical highlights of the day included the two first and last performing bands in the Homecoming Parade.

The Pride of Northwest, the Marching Bearcats under the direction of Al Segel, led with powerhouse sound and musicianship with a well-rehearsed "stepper" and flag corps. Their pride was even more evident as a row of Bearcat paw-print signs were lifted from behind.

The city of Maryville's very own pride, the Maryville Marching Spoofhounds under the direction of Lee Schneider and Dennis Dau, ended the parade with a climactic finale performance. The Spoofhounds, a regional award-winning-band showed off their own original style. They are known as a show band, utilizing crowd-pleasing high steps, shining baton twirlers and a precision flag corps.

Both Bearcat and Spoofhound bands did not march in competition.

Overall placement awards for the day were as follows:

Class 1A

1. Stewartsville (Dan Nemeth, director)
2. Craig (Riley Shenk, director)
3. Fairfax (Bob Svoboda, director) was announced. Dereberry and assistant Mike Lehman began working on ideas and color schemes; work on the actual frame began in mid-August.

Working on the trailer started about four weeks before homecoming for Delta Chi members. "The last week was tough, and the last day was hectic, but it was fun," Dereberry said.

Bill Robertson, a TKE pledge was surprised at the amount of work involved. "I did not realize how much time it would demand. I barely had enough time for my studies or sleep," Robertson said. "But it was a lot of fun and a good way to get to know the active members."

Janet Hines, Sigma Society, views the construction of floats as a chance to meet people. "When we worked on the float it helped us to get to know the pledges and it helped them to get to know us," Hines said. "Through working together we were able to achieve an excellent float."

The Sigma Society float, entitled "Chitty-Chitty Bang-Bang" captured second place in the Independent division.

Most everyone agrees that the main purpose of building the floats is for the reason described by Hines. It allows everyone to become acquainted and unites the group around a common goal.

Bearcats fumble Homecoming to Buffaloes

BY CONNIE FERGUSON
Sports Editor

Highlighting Homecoming activities was the football game Saturday afternoon pitting the Bearcats against the West Texas State University Buffaloes.

Defensively, there wasn't much of a struggle as the 'Cats bowed to the Buffaloes 65-42.

Less than three minutes into the first quarter, the Bearcats trailed 13-0.

'Cats kicker Peter Rameh connected on a 24-yard field goal to close out the first quarter with the score 'Cats-3 and the Buffaloes-13.

Offense proved to dominate the second quarter.

Quarterback Tom Kruse took the ball in from the one yardline to score a touchdown and bring the 'Cats within three points.

Stealing the lead, the 'Cats scored on a reverse play by freshman wide receiver Wes Camp. The PAT by Rameh was good and the 'Cats led 17-13.

West Texas State answered on a 16-yard pass from quarterback Doak Taylor to wide receiver Steve Love. The two-point conversion failed.

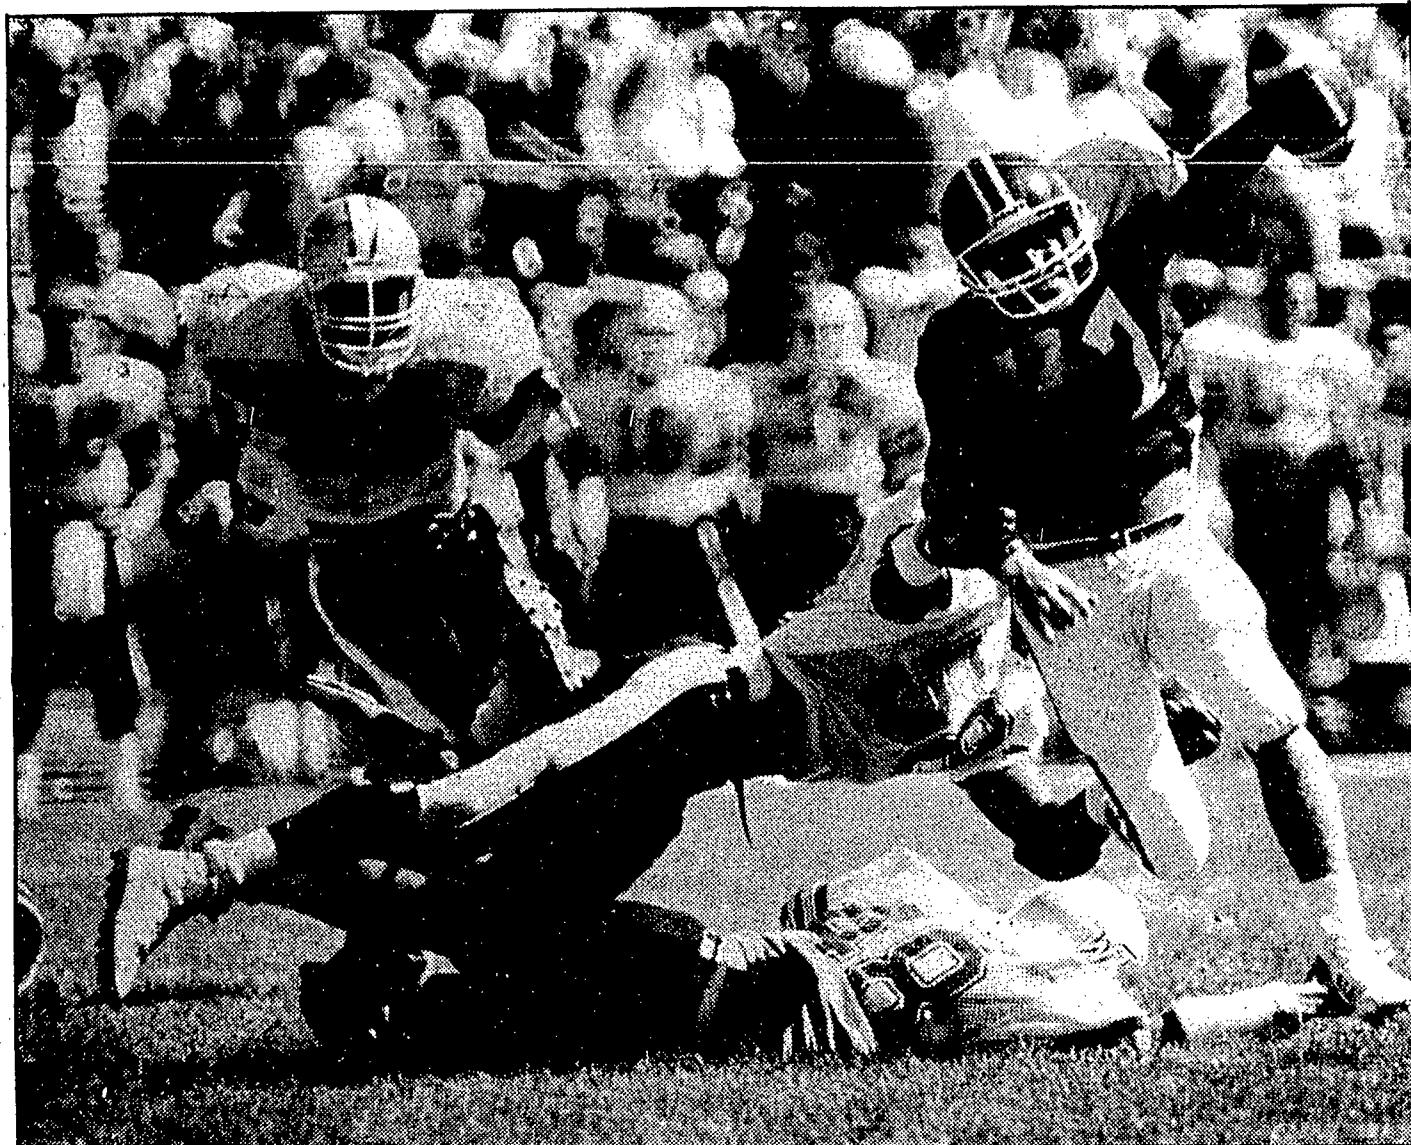

Battling back, the 'Cats regained the lead on an 83-yard touchdown pass from Kruse to Camp. Kruse ran it in for the two points making the score 25-19 in favor of Northwest.

The Buffaloes scored a touchdown and a field goal to take a 29-25 lead over the Bearcats at the half.

Scoring only a field goal by Rameh in the third quarter, the 'Cats fell victim to fumbles. Fumbling 10 times, the 'Cats turned the ball over three of those 10. West Texas State scored 14 points that quarter.

Midway through the fourth quarter, West Texas State linebacker Dusty Titile intercepted a Jeremy Wilson pass. Bearcat wide receiver Marlin Roach knocked it loose and the ball was picked up by offensive lineman George Doursham. This gave the 'Cats a first down and it looked as if the momentum was going their way.

Quarterback Tom Kruse scrambles and is thrown for a loss. Kruse was five of nine on the day with two interceptions, 142 yards and one touchdown. Photo by Jeff Allen.

On the next play, Camp completed a pass to wide receiver Phillip Quinn, moving the 'Cats to the Buffaloes 12-yardline. The 'Cats couldn't convert, however, and were forced to turn the ball over to the Buffaloes.

West Texas State scored from two yards out and the 'Cats trailed 58-28.

With a little over two minutes remaining in the game, the teams began trading touchdowns.

Northwest scored on a 12-yard run by quarterback Wilson. Rameh's PAT sailed through the uprights making it a 58-35 game.

The Buffaloes scored on a 51-yard touchdown pass thrown by quarterback Dan Buesing to running back Tim Anuskiewicz.

With a minute left in the game, Wilson connected on a 63-yard pass to Quinn for the touchdown and again Rameh's PAT was good.

West Texas State ran out the clock with the scoreboard in their favor, 65-42.

The 'Cats gained 214 yards rushing and passed for 274 yards for a total offense of 488 yards.

Defensively, linebacker Greg Jones led with 15 tackles.

Four records were broken during the game:

- 1.) Highest point total by two teams--107
- 2.) Most points against Northwest at Homecoming--65
- 3.) Most points scored by Northwest at Homecoming--42
- 4.) Most points scored by Northwest in a losing game--42.

Freshman wide receiver Wes Camp was awarded the Don Black Memorial Trophy for the outstanding Bearcat in the Homecoming game. Camp scored two touchdowns, one was an 83-yard pass and the other was on a 20-yard reverse play. He caught two passes for 96 yards and completed one pass for 31 yards.

The loss dropped the 'Cats to 0-4. Next weekend, the 'Cats travel to Kirksville to take on the Northeast Missouri State Bulldogs. This marks the opening of the 1988 MIAA season.

Iba coaches Olympic team

BY CARI PREWITT
Special to the Missourian

The Olympic basketball arenas in Mexico City, Munich and Tokyo are quiet. All eyes are on the USA Men's Olympic Basketball Team currently competing in Seoul, Korea. And the eyes of Henry Iba are no exception.

Iba, a 1928 graduate from Northwest, who majored in physical education, is watching from his living room in Stillwell, Oklahoma and remembering what it felt like to be there. In the 1964, 1968, and 1972 Olympics, Iba was the USA Men's Basketball coach.

"I was very honored to have an opportunity just to be with those people," Iba said. "I felt that we should do everything we could for our country."

Henry, who is 70-years old, is retired after nearly 65 years of involvement in this sport of basketball.

"I think I have a good knowledge of the game, and I like to help out with it when I can. The knowledge of the young coaches, and what the media has done over the years to keep basketball in front of the public has done a lot for the game.

Iba's career began two years following his graduation from Northwest when he returned to Maryville to coach the men's basketball team. He remained here until 1934, when he went on to coach for one year at Colorado University. From there, he moved to Oklahoma State University where he coached for 36 seasons. His Cowboys' made it to the national tournament eight times and dribbled their way to two national championships.

In his six-plus decades of experience of the sport, Iba has seen how the game has changed.

"It hasn't changed as much as people think. If anything, the people have changed, not the game. The people are stronger and larger now. The players are also faster."

On Tuesday night, the USA team was defeated by the Soviets, something that hasn't happened since Henry Iba was coaching the 1972 team in Munich. That controversial game saw the USA lose by two points after mechanical malfunctions with less than three seconds to play in the game.

"I felt bad for the men who played in the Olympics that year," Iba said. "I thought what happened was political. We went up and down the floor three or four times before the Russians had a chance to score."

But his many personal accomplishments have made up for that loss. Iba has been inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Massachusetts and the Halls of Fame in Missouri and Oklahoma.

His favorite award, however, has been his induction into the M-Club Hall of Fame.

"It was quite an honor," Iba said. "I've always cherished the M-Club Award because I've always felt close to Northwest."

In a few weeks Henry Iba will start traveling around the country to colleges such as Baylor, Texas Christian University, and Indiana talking to coaches and players about what he loves most: the game of basketball.

Spikers drop three to Lady Griffons 15-12, 15-8, 15-8

BY CONNIE FERGUSON
Sports Editor

Although senior Nancy Pfeifler moved into third place on the all-time Northwest kill list with an 11-kill night against Missouri Western Monday night, the Bearkittens lost in three games to the Lady Griffons 15-12, 15-8 and 15-8.

Pfeifler's career total moved her to 1,026 ahead of Susie Thomas' 1020, but still trailing Mary Beth Bishop's 1,299 and Kelly Greenlee's 1,121. Ironically, Bishop, Thomas and Pfeifler all played high school volleyball at Omaha Westside.

Battling from an 8-11 deficit, the 'Kittens took a 12-11 lead. The Lady Griffons made their own comeback, however, and won the first game 15-12.

Northwest held a few leads during the next two games, but Western prevailed by scoring the final four points in the second game and the final three in the third.

Pfeifler led Northwest attackers with 11 kills and added a team-high nine saving digs and a .400 attack percentage.

Kathy Webb had seven kills, and Laura Bowen had five kills and a team-high 13 assists. Freshman setter Rhonda McDonald had 11 assists, two aces and three digs.

Teamwise, the Bearkittens had a .286 kill percentage but were hurt by the effects of 10 serve reception errors that accounted for 10 of Western's 45 total points.

Meanwhile, the JV squad evened their record to 1-1 with 15-6 and 15-7 wins over Western. Ronda Triplett (7 blocks) and Jill Hurt (5 blocks) keyed a strong Bearkitten defense.

"They played 100 percent better than they did over the weekend at the Midland Lutheran Invitational," Coach Peg Voisin said.

Losing to Wayne State, host Midland Lutheran and Dordt, the Bearkittens dropped to 4-9 overall and 1-1 in the MIAA conference.

They travel to Warrensburg this weekend to participate in the MIAA Round Robin Tournament hosted by Central Missouri State.

"They still need more experience, but should be more positive and confident for this weekend," Voisin said.
